The Maltings (1895)

During the 17th Century, Enniscorthy developed an economy largely based on the processing of agricultural produce. As a result there were 29 Malt houses built by 1796.

The Maltings or The appeared on the area in 1903. It Maltings was a House although the western side may an older building. Malster with a Ross is credited the family concern, which developed the Maltings as it is today. P.J Roche and Sons leased the site from William Moran in 1870 which was described as part of the lands with a corn store garden and premises at Mary Street and Island Road.

Malt House first ordinance maps of is clear that The purpose built Malt lower walls on the have been a part of P.J. Roche, a business in New with establishing

The Maltings building which is now The Bailey, has a date stone which reads 'The Maltings ,1895, P J Roche. The Bailey, Barrack Street, Enniscorthy. T: 053 9230353 W: www.thebailey.ie
